

MUTT AND JEFF Mutt Can't Afford to Lose or Win This One

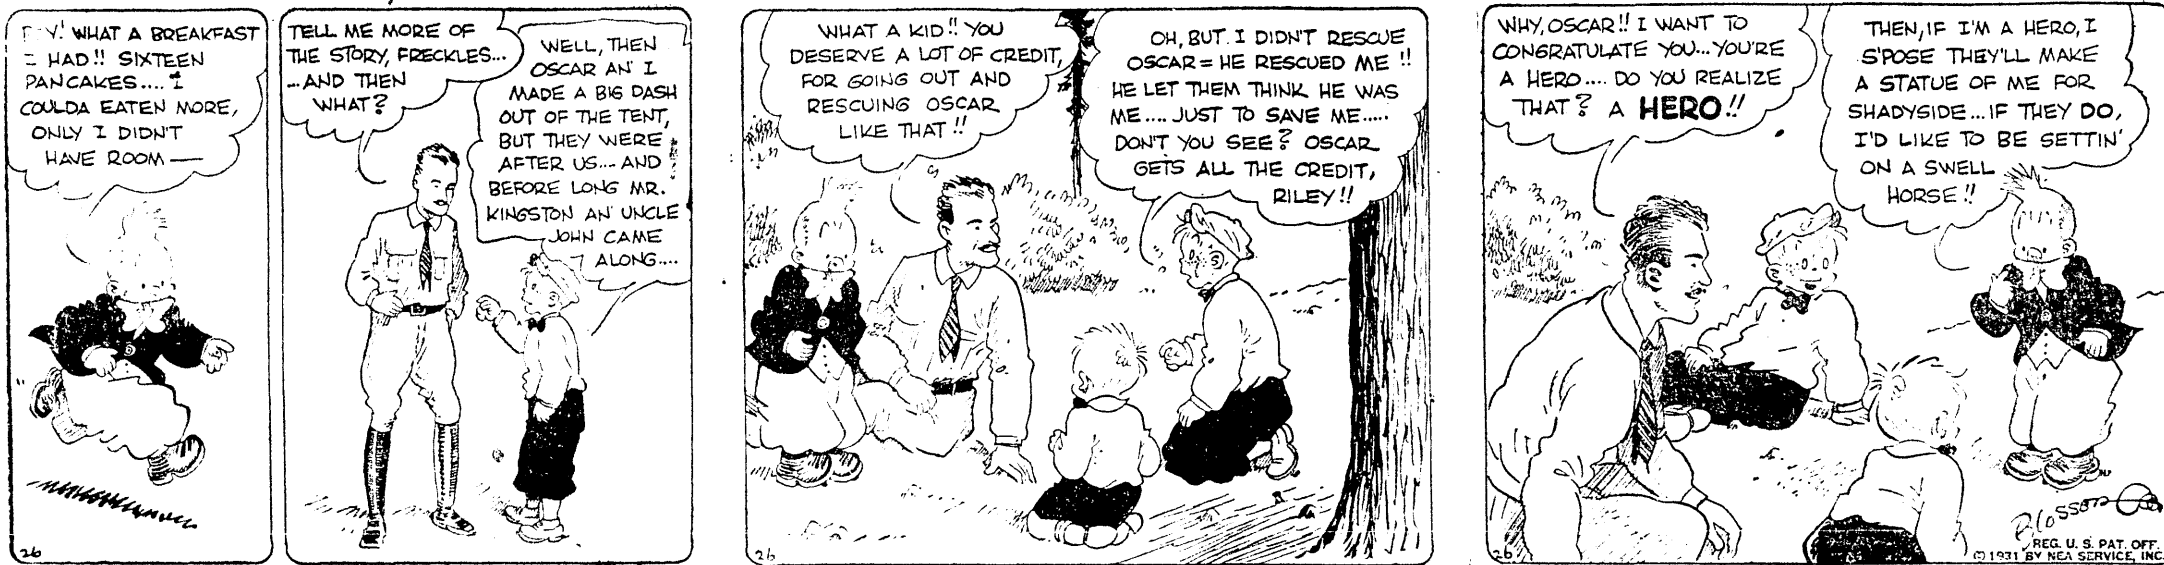

By BUD FISHER

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

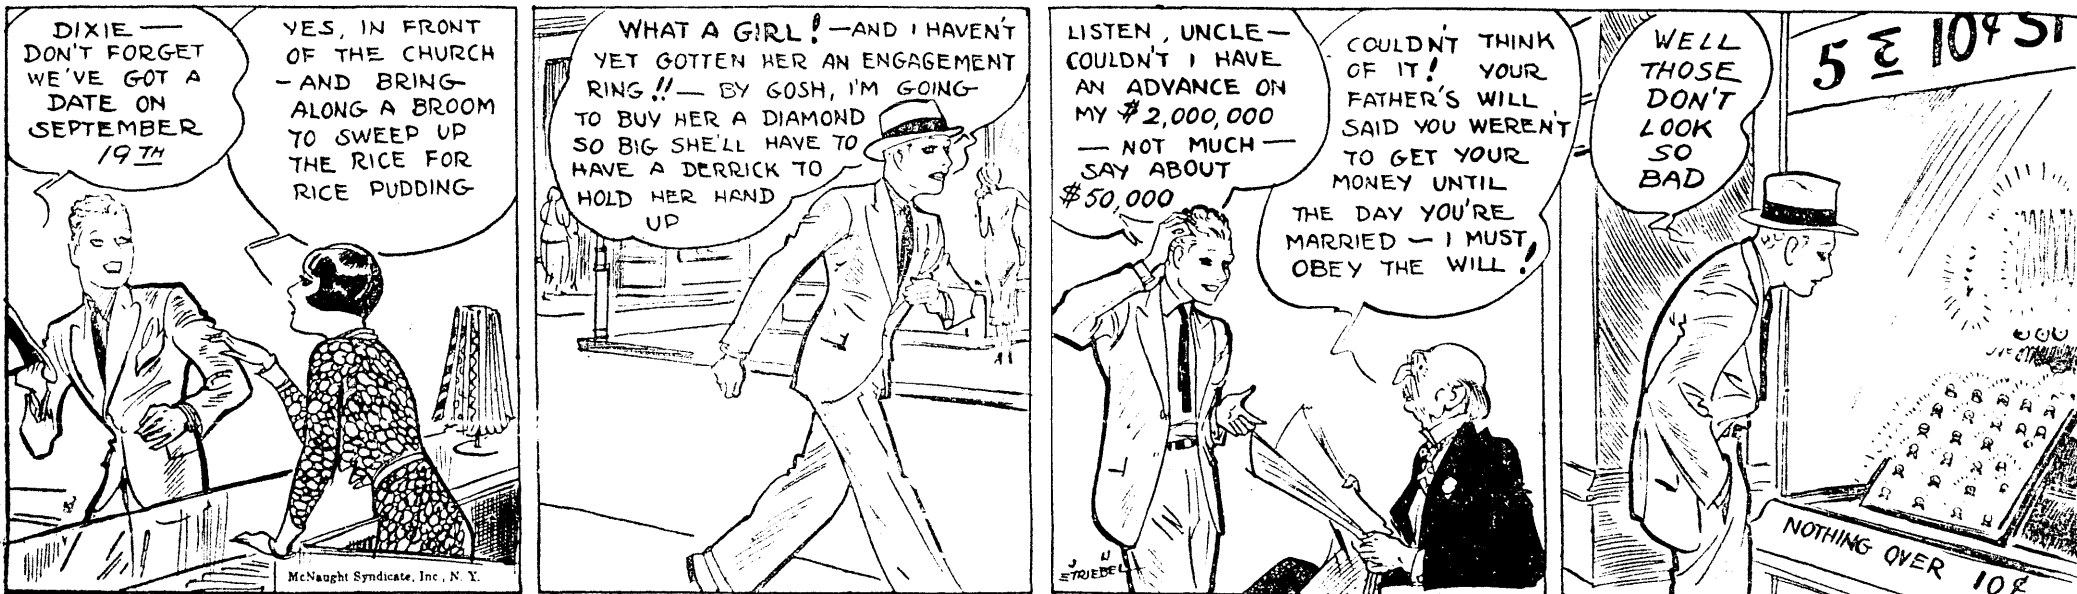

He Likes Those Kind

By Blosser

DIXIE DUGAN—Good, For The Money

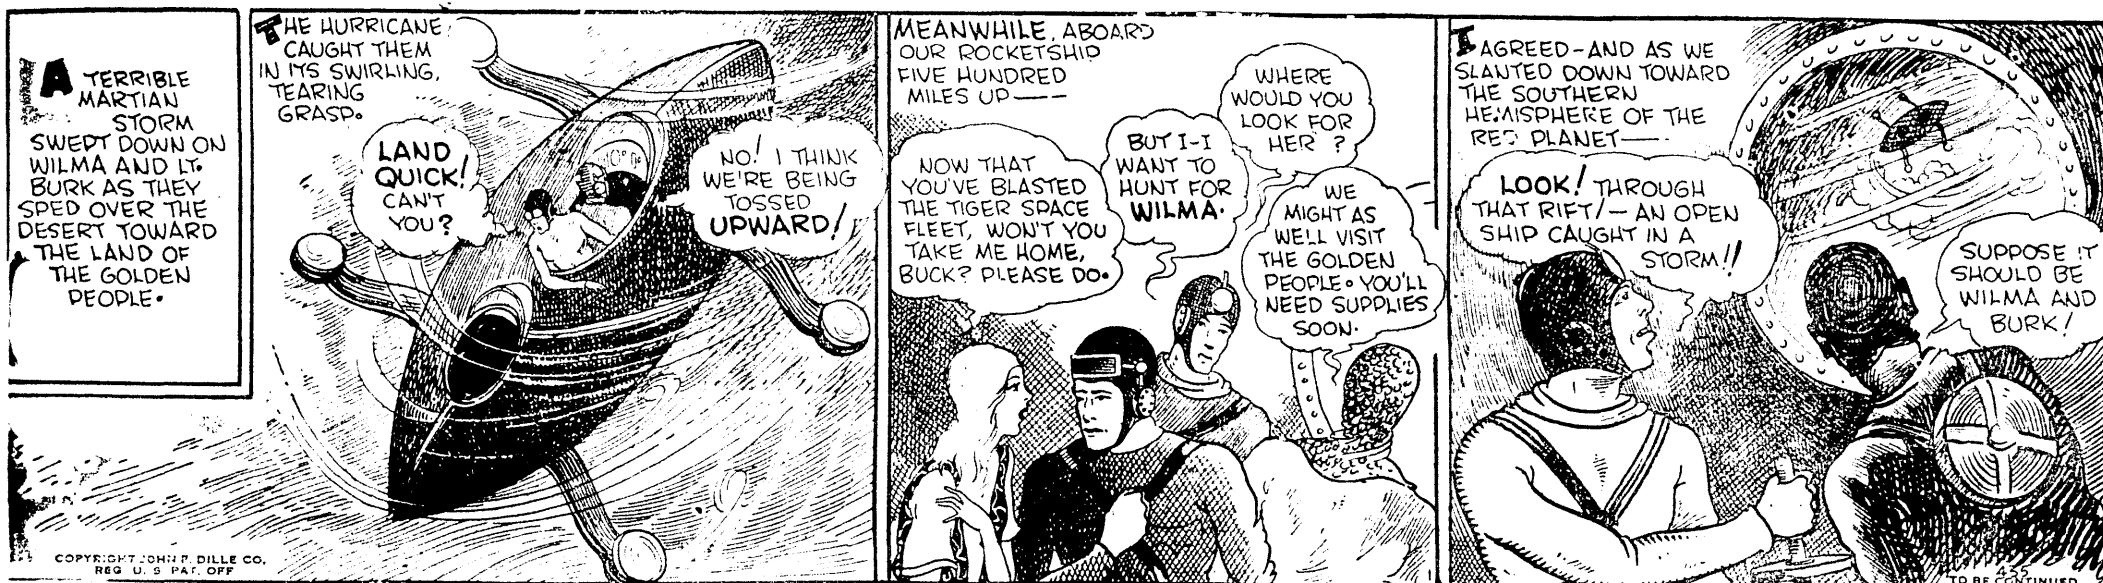

By J. P. McEVOY and J. H. STRIEBEL

BUCK ROGERS, 2429 A. D.

Seek Storm-Tortured Craft

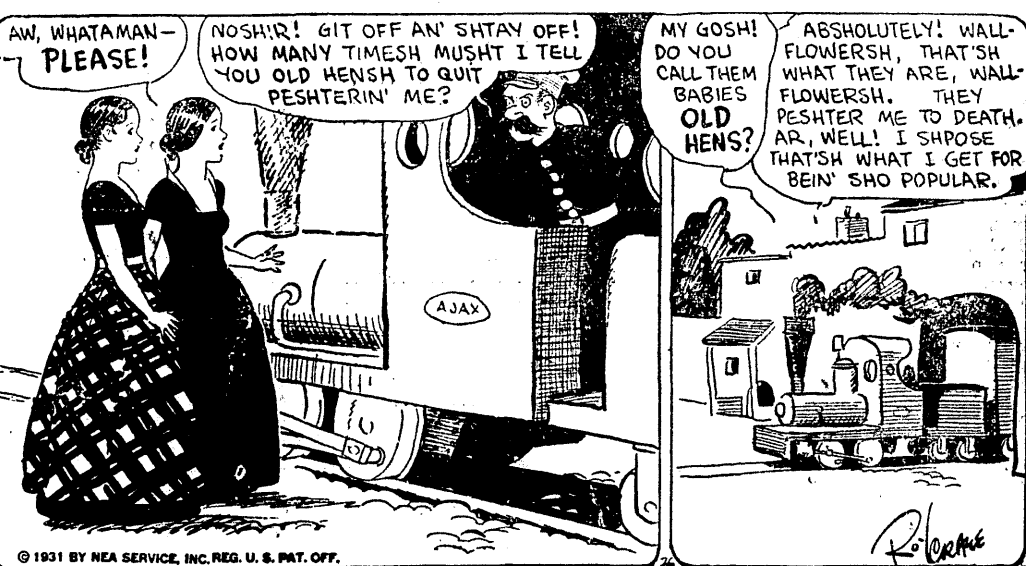

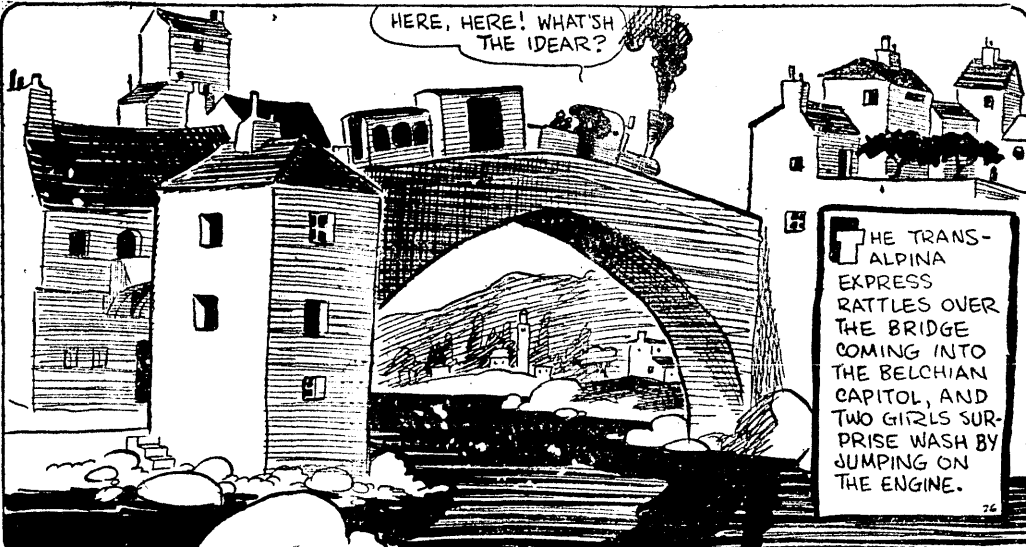

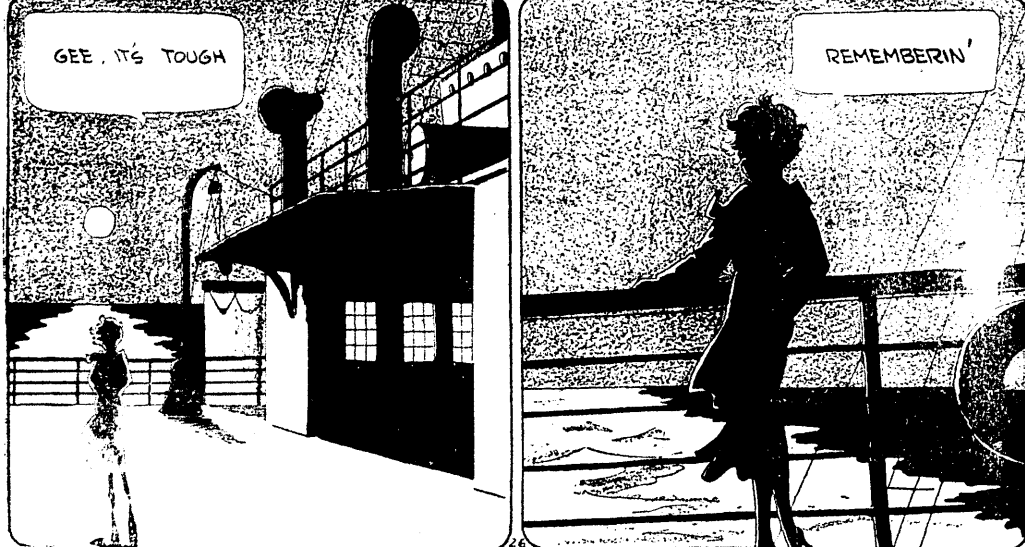

By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES. Sailing... Sailing...!! By MARTIN.

WASHINGTON TUPPE My Whistling!

By C. ANE

DAILY CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

- Brilliant money
- Stores
- Harden
- The older tree
- Said in other words
- Fold of thread
- Note of the scale
- Organs of hearing
- With animal
- Small round mark
- Concise
- Diplomacy
- Plunged into water
- Chop into small pieces
- Ship's officer
- Employ
- Swindle
- Tapering solid
- Things kept from general knowledge
- Slows
- Melody
- Puts up in jars
- Institute suit
- Glossy
- Wagon
- Mathematical function

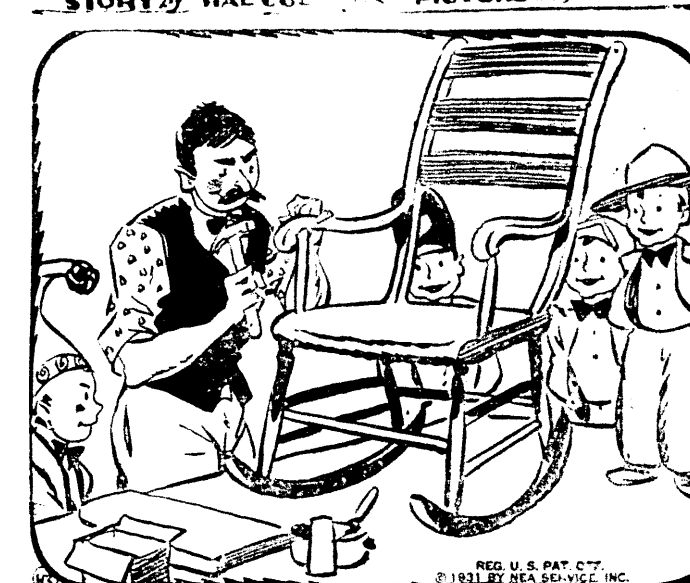

DOWN

- Take away
- Prepared for publication
- Cry of derision
- Recent
- Giving variety
- In this way
- Comfort
- Single call
- Spanish lady
- Silent
- Rejoice
- Ginny
- Copper coin
- Underdone
- Shed hill
- Project
- Place of pasteboard
- Large, strong wisp
- Barrel maker
- Party
- Leaping amphibian
- Mends
- Pronoun
- American journalist and diplomat
- Not old
- Enthusiastic devotee
- Card game
- Finch
- Love
- Myself

Evolution of Yesterday's Puzzle

COD	DRAMA	APPO
ANI	EAGER	LAD
REVENGE	BOONE
EASE	TURN
CARSE	SATEENS
ERST	MINUS	AT
DOE	MYNKS	RHO
AS	PINKS	DARN
REWARDS	SEINE
ERAS	AWEM
TONIC	ALLMENT
ADD	LOVER	NEO
GAS	ERECT	TEN

THE TINYMITES

READ THE STORY—THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

Course Clowney was a proud young lad and was no wonder he was glad to sit astride the winning horse. There is a little shop in town I want you all to see. I'm sure the workman whom you'll meet will show you work he's done, real neat. I've heard upon him before. He's always busy as can be.

The jockey then said, "Now it's best that my horse have a needed rest. I'll take him to the stable. You can ride right in with us." And, as they passed through the crowd, we Clowney tipped his hat and bowed. Thought he, it is the horse or me that's causing such a fuss?

He shouted to the Tynmites, "Hey, follow me! We'll see some sights." So to the stable they all went, as quickly as they could. "Just look around," the jockey said. "Don't be afraid. Go right ahead!" The Tynmites looked in every stall where fine race horses stood.

"That pretty black one," Scouty said, "is a Kentucky thoroughbred. I know, because I rode upon a horse just like him once. In fact, that's when I learned to ride." And then another Tyn cried, "Why, I have been upon a horse that did real clever stunts."

They reached the shop and walked inside. "A furniture factory," Carpy cried. "And look, the man is working now upon a rocking chair!" The next thing that the Tynmites knew brave Clowney said, "Can we watch you?" The man looked up and said, "Why, sure! I'm sure that I don't care."

(The Tynmites land in Peru in the next story.)

HOLD NEGRO SUSPECT

Oklahoma City, Aug. 25.—(P)—Police here were informed today a negro giving the name of C. G. Miller was held by Bloomington, Ill., authorities in connection with the theft here July 28 of $8,000 in jewelry samples from John R. Wolfe, Chicago salesman.

They said some of the jewelry was recovered at pawnshops here and that Bloomington police reported other pieces were in the negro's possession. The negro told Bloomington officers he found the jewelry in sample cases on the streets here. Wolfe said it was taken from his motor car.

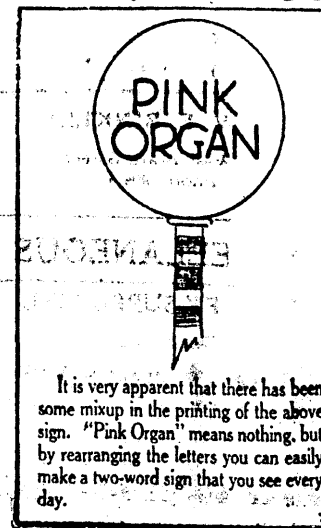

Professor Dewey of Columbia is considered the leading light among today's American librarians.

foxy phann

THE BALLPLAYER WHO DROPS THE BALL IN A PINCH IS SURE TO CATCH IT—FROM THE MANAGER.

STICKLERS

MANY VETERANS TO ATTEND STATE LEGION MEETING

Four Day Convention to be Held in Peoria Beginning Saturday

More than one hundred members of the Jacksonville post of the American Legion, the Legion Auxiliary and Forty and Eight will attend the annual state convention of these groups at Peoria. The convention begins Saturday of this week and continues through Tuesday of next week.

The first local delegation will leave for the gathering Saturday with larger units making the trip to the convention city Sunday and Monday. Included in the local body will be the Jacksonville State Hospital American Legion band, which will go to Peoria Sunday morning. This band will join with others in giving a joint concert Sunday and will participate in the contest in the parade on Monday afternoon. The musicians have received a special invitation to attend the convention, through Commander Jack Poorman, and the veterans will go with the determination of again taking first honors for the best band in the parade, which promises to be the most colorful of the year.

A special group of the veterans service men, which will go to Peoria will be the clown band, which was recently organized. Its first appearance being at Springfield, Sunday. These musicians will appear in Peoria on the old fire truck which has been converted into a police patrol wagon.

Midnight shows, street dances, swimming, golf, tennis, boating, tour of the city, motor boat races and contests are on the program of entertainment for the ex-service men and the members of the Auxiliary.

With representation of the war veterans will be the Forty and Eight, which will be held Saturday evening at the Peoria Convention headquarters. The veterans will be at the Peoria Convention headquarters at the Peoria Convention headquarters.

Sunday morning the Legion department executive committee of which Grant L. Hughes of this city is a member will meet and the Forty and Eight convention opens at the K. C. club. In the afternoon there will be preliminary contests between the drum and bugle corps at the Peoria Convention headquarters at the Peoria Convention headquarters.

Monday morning at nine o'clock the Legion and Auxiliary conventions will begin. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon will occur the feature of the convention, the parade, and at eight o'clock in the evening the final band and drum and bugle corps contests will take place.

Business sessions of the Legion will take place throughout Tuesday after which adjournment will occur.

In addition to other important business matters to be transacted at the convention will be the choosing of officers for the ensuing year and the selection of a meeting place. Danville is bidding for the 1932 convention and has received the endorsement of several districts of Illinois. Danville entertained the veterans a few years ago at Peoria. It is expected that the 1932 convention will be held in Chicago in conjunction with the World's fair.

The local post of the Legion voted to send its delegates to the convention unaffiliated for commander and other state officers. The Jacksonville veterans, however, unanimously endorsed for reelection, Grant L. Hughes for commander of the 20th district. The caucus at which the district commander will be elected will be held Sunday evening at district headquarters.

The commander, adjutant and chairman of the membership committee of the local post will wear two gold chevrons indicating that the membership this year reached a figure above the four year average.

HONOR GEO. D. CLAYTON ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Relatives and neighbors of George D. Clayton of Murrayville gathered at his home Sunday, August 24, the date of his seventieth birthday. At noon a dinner was served to a company of 62 people.

Mr. Clayton is one of the oldest citizens of the Murrayville community.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends for the kindness shown us during our late bereavement due to the death of Mrs. Ratfin. Also for the beautiful flowers and use of card.

Mrs. G. J. Steinmetz

State Fair Program

CHICAGO DAY

Wednesday, Aug. 25

Judging schedule:

Coleseum

Beef Cattle—Shorthorn

Dairy Cattle—Brown Swiss and Guernsey

Heavy Horses—Clydesdales and farm colts

Horse and Mule Team Pulling Contest 10.00 a m. grandstand

Horseback Riding—Trotting and Steeplechase—Trotting and Steeplechase

Swine Pavilion—Spotted Poland Chinas and Berkshire

Governor Emerson Building

Horticultural Section—Fruit, grapes, edible nuts

Floral Hall—Artistic displays, Professional class; Rock Garden awards

Culinary—Bred and candy judging and demonstrations

Junior Department—4-H Club building

Boys' and Girls' Demonstration contest and style show

Entertainment Program

Grand Circuit Harness Races—4 events, $7,500—including Review 2-year old Futurity trot, $4,000.

Two running races

Big free attraction, afternoon and evening

Machinery Parade

Society Horse Show in Coliseum

D. D. Murphy Shows in Happy Hollow

Winchester

Winchester, Aug. 25.—Mrs. C. R. Thomas and daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Sneed, of Roodhouse, visited here Monday with Mrs. Sarah Thomas.

Mrs. Schuyler Campbell was called to Jerseyville on Monday by the severe illness of her husband. She was accompanied by Miss Alice L. Mudd.

Otto Henry and wife have returned home from Collins, Ill., where they visited with their parents. His mother has been quite ill.

The special committee appointed to employ a new manager for the Winchester unit of the Scott County Produce association has secured the services of Walter Scott, who will take charge at once. Mr. Scott has been very active on the board of directors of this association.

Mrs. Edw. K. Kirkpatrick gave a party Saturday afternoon in honor of the sixth birthday of her son, Edward. The little folks enjoyed games on the lawn, after which refreshments were served.

ELIZABETH BROWN OF NEW BERLIN TAKEN BY DEATH

Funeral Services to be Held Thursday Afternoon at Residence

New Berlin, Aug. 25.—Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, aged 71, passed away at 9:15 o'clock Tuesday morning at the family residence two miles northeast of here, following an illness of several days.

The deceased was born on August 4, 1860, the daughter of Thomas and Ellen Swain, of the Franklin community. She was united in marriage with J. W. Brown on March 2, 1880. To this union five children were born.

With representation of the war veterans will be the Forty and Eight, which will be held Saturday evening at the Peoria Convention headquarters. The veterans will be at the Peoria Convention headquarters at the Peoria Convention headquarters.

Sunday morning the Legion department executive committee of which Grant L. Hughes of this city is a member will meet and the Forty and Eight convention opens at the K. C. club. In the afternoon there will be preliminary contests between the drum and bugle corps at the Peoria Convention headquarters at the Peoria Convention headquarters.

Monday morning at nine o'clock the Legion and Auxiliary conventions will begin. At 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon will occur the feature of the convention, the parade, and at eight o'clock in the evening the final band and drum and bugle corps contests will take place.

Business sessions of the Legion will take place throughout Tuesday after which adjournment will occur.

In addition to other important business matters to be transacted at the convention will be the choosing of officers for the ensuing year and the selection of a meeting place. Danville is bidding for the 1932 convention and has received the endorsement of several districts of Illinois. Danville entertained the veterans a few years ago at Peoria. It is expected that the 1932 convention will be held in Chicago in conjunction with the World's fair.

The local post of the Legion voted to send its delegates to the convention unaffiliated for commander and other state officers. The Jacksonville veterans, however, unanimously endorsed for reelection, Grant L. Hughes for commander of the 20th district. The caucus at which the district commander will be elected will be held Sunday evening at district headquarters.

The commander, adjutant and chairman of the membership committee of the local post will wear two gold chevrons indicating that the membership this year reached a figure above the four year average.

HONOR GEO. D. CLAYTON ON 70TH BIRTHDAY

Relatives and neighbors of George D. Clayton of Murrayville gathered at his home Sunday, August 24, the date of his seventieth birthday. At noon a dinner was served to a company of 62 people.

Mr. Clayton is one of the oldest citizens of the Murrayville community.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends for the kindness shown us during our late bereavement due to the death of Mrs. Ratfin. Also for the beautiful flowers and use of card.

Mrs. G. J. Steinmetz

State Fair Program

CHICAGO DAY

Wednesday, Aug. 25

Judging schedule:

Coleseum

Beef Cattle—Shorthorn

Dairy Cattle—Brown Swiss and Guernsey

Heavy Horses—Clydesdales and farm colts

Horse and Mule Team Pulling Contest 10.00 a m. grandstand

Horseback Riding—Trotting and Steeplechase—Trotting and Steeplechase

Swine Pavilion—Spotted Poland Chinas and Berkshire

Governor Emerson Building

Horticultural Section—Fruit, grapes, edible nuts

Floral Hall—Artistic displays, Professional class; Rock Garden awards

Culinary—Bred and candy judging and demonstrations

Junior Department—4-H Club building

Boys' and Girls' Demonstration contest and style show

Entertainment Program

Grand Circuit Harness Races—4 events, $7,500—including Review 2-year old Futurity trot, $4,000.

Two running races

Big free attraction, afternoon and evening

Machinery Parade

Society Horse Show in Coliseum

D. D. Murphy Shows in Happy Hollow

FINAL RITES ARE HELD IN CITY FOR MISHAP VICTIMS

Impressive Services Conducted for Members of Bozarth Family Tuesday

Several hundred persons yesterday filed by four gray and white caaskets in the chapel of the Williamson Funeral Home, to view the remains of the entire Bozarth family who met death on a railroad crossing near here Sunday. Tuesday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock funeral services were held for all of the victims, one of the largest ceremonies of its kind ever conducted in this city.

The chapel of the funeral home was entirely filled by relatives and friends and many did not gain admittance. Those who could not get into the chapel could hear the service from the porch and lawn. Practically all persons in the Salem neighborhood attended the funeral as well as many others residing east of the city.

The Rev. George H. C. Smith, of the First Methodist church, officiated at the services for the family consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Bozarth, Mildred Delana Bozarth, 11, and Mary Ellen Bozarth, 6.

Three songs were sung at the funeral home by Mrs. C. R. Smith and Mrs. J. A. Leitz. The selections were "The City Four Square," "Jewels," and "There Are No Disappointments in Heaven."

The discourse was given by Rev. George H. C. Smith, who had for his theme "I Go to Prepare a Place." The Lord Has Been a Dwelling Place for All Generations," Rev. Hayes emphasized the following characteristics as benefits to be derived from the "Eternal Dwelling Place": 1-A place of safety; 2-A source of blessing; 3-A firm foundation. It was also brought out there also is to be found in the happy home beyond the grave.

It was also brought out that sorrow, care, and human sufferings here on earth tend to discipline and educate us, and without them we could never learn to appreciate the home that is not fashioned with hands.

Rev. George W. Flagg read the following obituary:

Walter Nelson Bozarth was born at Bates, Neb., Jan. 29, 1888. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Bozarth. He was educated in the public schools of Nebraska. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1910 with the degree of civil engineer. After some time in the railroad industry he decided to make farming his life and has farmed in Nebraska, California and Illinois. When he came to Illinois he was for a time with the Illinois Steel Bridge company. In this city he met Miss Edith Ticknor, whom he married May 6, 1918.

Miss Ticknor was born near Winchester, Ill., in 1887. It was her fortune to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in 1907. She was fortunate to suffer the loss of her mother, who died while Edith was still a small girl; and it was also her good fortune to be taken into the home of her stepmother, Mrs. C. W. Cully, where she grew to womanhood. She graduated from the public school of the Winchester, Ill., in